Wikipedia:In the news/Candidates

< Wikipedia:In the news

This page provides a place to discuss new items for inclusion on In the news (ITN), a protected template on the Main Page (see past items in the ITN archives). Do not report errors in ITN items that are already on the Main Page here – discuss those at the relevant section of WP:ERRORS.

In the news toolbox

This candidates page is integrated with the daily pages of Portal:Current events. A light green header appears under each daily section – it includes transcluded Portal:Current events items for that day. You can discuss ITN candidates under the header.

Glossary

- Blurbs are one-sentence summaries of the news story.
  - Altblurbs, labelled alt1, alt2, etc., are alternative suggestions to cover the same story.
  - A target article, bolded in text, is the focus of the story. Each blurb must have at least one such article, but you may also link non-target articles.
- Articles in the Ongoing line describe events getting continuous coverage.
- The Recent deaths (RD) line includes any living thing whose death was recently announced. Consensus may decide to create a blurb for a recent death.

All articles featured in the ITN template must pass our standards of review. They should be up-to-date, demonstrate relevance via good sourcing and have at least an acceptable quality.

Nomination steps

- Make sure the item you want to nominate has an article that meets our minimum requirements and contains reliable coverage of a current event you want to create a blurb about. We will not post about events described in an article that fails our quality standards.
- Find the correct section below for the date of the event (not the date nominated). Do not add sections for new dates manually – a bot does that for us each day at midnight (UTC).
- Create a level 4 header with the article name (==== Your article here ====). Add (RD) or (Ongoing) if appropriate.

  Then paste the {{ITN candidate}} template with its parameters and fill them in. The news source should be reliable, support your nomination and be in the article. Write your blurb in simple present tense. Below the template, briefly explain why we should post that event. After that, save your edit. Your nomination is ready!

- You may add {{ITN note}} to the target article's talk page to let editors know about your nomination.

The better your article's quality, the better it covers the event and the wider its perceived significance (see WP:ITNSIGNIF for details), the better your chances of getting the blurb posted.

Headers

- When the article is ready, updated and there is consensus to post, you can mark the item as (Ready). Remove that wording if you feel the article fails any of these necessary criteria.
- Admins should always separately verify whether these criteria are met before posting items marked (Ready). For more guidance, check WP:ITN/A.
  - If satisfied, post the item and change the header to (Posted).
  - Where there is no consensus, close the discussion section and change the header to (Closed). If the article's quality remains poor, leave a brief note explaining why to encourage and assist others in fixing it.
  - Sometimes, editors ask to retract an already-posted nomination because of a fundamental error or because consensus changed. If you feel the community supports this, remove the item and mark the item as (Pulled).

Voicing an opinion on an item

Format your comment to contain "support" or "oppose", and include a rationale for your choice. In particular, address the notability of the event, the quality of the article, and whether it has been updated.

Please do...

1. Pick an older item to review near the bottom of this page, before the eligibility runs out and the item scrolls off the page and gets abandoned in the archive, unused and forgotten.
2. Review an item even if it has already been reviewed by another user. You may be the first to spot a problem, or the first to confirm that an identified problem was fixed. Piling on the list of "support!" votes will help administrators see what is ready to be posted on the Main Page.
3. Tell about problems in articles if you see them. Be bold and fix them yourself if you know how, or tell others if it's not possible.

Please do not...

1. Add simple "support!" or "oppose!" votes without including your reasons. Similarly, curt replies such as "who?", "meh", or "duh!" are not helpful. A vote without reasoning means little for us, please elaborate yourself.
2. Oppose an item just because the event is only relating to a single country, or failing to relate to one. We post a lot of such content, so these comments are generally unproductive.
3. Accuse other editors of supporting, opposing or nominating due to a personal bias (such as ethnocentrism). We at ITN do not handle conflicts of interest.
4. Comment on a story without first reading the relevant article(s).
5. Oppose a recurring item here because you disagree with the recurring items criteria. Discuss them here.
6. Use ITN as a forum for your own political or personal beliefs. Such comments are irrelevant to the outcome and are potentially disruptive.

Suggesting updates

There are two places where you can request corrections to posted items:

- Anything that does not change the intent of the blurb (spelling, grammar, markup issues, updating death tolls etc.) should be discussed at WP:Errors.
- Discuss major changes in the blurb's intent or very complex updates as part of the current ITNC nomination.

Structure

This page contains a section for each day and a sub-section for each nomination. Eight days of current nominations are maintained – older days are archived.

To see the size and title of each section, please expand the following section size summary.

Discussions of items older than seven days are automatically archived

Nominator's comments: The only edits in the past week have been to update the death tolls and to fix references. The "Timeline of the outbreak" ends on 29 June and much of the rest of the article is written in WP:Proseline or bulleted lists. I have no opinion on the event itself but the article is not currently being kept up to date and falls below the minimum expected quality. Dumelow (talk) 04:44, 10 July 2026 (UTC)

News source(s): BBC, CNN, NYTimes
Credits: Nominated by Gust Justice (talk · give credit)Created by AbigailCav68 (talk · give credit)Updated by The Anome (talk · give credit) and Aficionado538 (talk · give credit)

Nominator's comments: Leader of the largest party in the UK according to current opinion polls, and a widely covered story that could have significant ramifications for British politics going forward. Gust Justice (talk) 19:52, 7 July 2026 (UTC)

- Oppose Firstly Reform only have a 8 out of 650 MPs and no amount of disproportational media presence will change that. Secondly this is just a publicity stunt to hide the fact Farage has secretly received large sums of money from questionable sources and has now been caught doing so. This is an attempt to derail the investigation. Local political drama of just one opposition MP. Abcmaxx (talk) 20:36, 7 July 2026 (UTC)
- Oppose 1, it's not been officially called yet (the government could still block it by not appointing him to the office of profit). 2, it's still a local national matter (which I say as someone British). And 3, we don't tend to do by-elections on ITN. The C of E God Save the King! (talk) 20:40, 7 July 2026 (UTC)
- Oppose, political stunt. Although I have to say I smiled at 2026 Clacton by-election with just the images of Farage and Count Binface. Black Kite (talk) 21:01, 7 July 2026 (UTC)
- Oppose Nigel garage is not an official leader or anything (other than his party) so there's no reason to post this just because of the resignation. Also, by elections happen often. Vetrenarisisum (talk) 21:35, 7 July 2026 (UTC)

  Oppose just another political drama. _-_Alsor (talk) 21:50, 7 July 2026 (UTC)

- Oppose - We very rightly didn't post the Makerfield by-election, even though it was correctly anticipated to lead to the resignation of the actual PM. We absolutely should not post the resignation - as MP only, not even as party leader - of the unelected leader of a fringe party. This is ludicrous. GenevieveDEon (talk) 22:54, 7 July 2026 (UTC)

Nominator's comments: A major controversy with huge repercussions over the interference of politics in sports that receives global front-page coverage. --~2026-38459-70 (talk) 07:35, 7 July 2026 (UTC)

Oppose The article shouldn't even exist per WP:NTRUMP HiLo48 (talk) 07:47, 7 July 2026 (UTC)
WP:NTRUMP is an essay not policy, and it should be noted that not everything Trump does is tabloid drama. FIFA being corrupt/political is noteworthy and this is being widely reported. Salmon Of Ignorance (talk) 08:07, 7 July 2026 (UTC)
Oppose – Platonic ideal example of "Covered by Ongoing". There's basically a whole section on it there, though it's small. Not the biggest US-based news story of the week either. ~Maplestrip/Mable (chat) 08:06, 7 July 2026 (UTC)
Strong oppose this is just another one controversy of this World Cup, so there's no point of highlighting this one specifically. NotKringe (talk) 08:10, 7 July 2026 (UTC)

- Moot Now that the US have been crushed by Belgium, the fuss will tend to fade fast. It further confirms that FIFA is corrupt but that's not news so we need some further development for this to have legs. Andrew (talk) 09:41, 7 July 2026 (UTC)
- Comment Trump isn't even the issue here - he does stupid things like this all the time and it's not news. What is news is FIFA's response, because a non-corrupt sports administration would have told Trump to go forth and multiply. The issue of the governance of FIFA (see their response to the Belgian FA...words fail me) is clearly a news story but it shouldn't be couched purely in the terms of this particular incident, which given the match result has turned out to be irrelevant. Any other controversies are (at the moment) covered by the Ongoing. And yes, this article shouldn't exist, we have 2026_FIFA_World_Cup#Controversies for that. Black Kite (talk) 09:47, 7 July 2026 (UTC)
  I've nominated this for merging to List of 2026 FIFA World Cup controversies. It is a prime example of how much excess detail ppl are writing on breaking news over some controversy (more opinions, less facts) without waiting to see how far it lasts. Masem (t) 11:27, 7 July 2026 (UTC)

Nominator's comments: Article needs the official results and seats added, also expansion as to the legitimacy of the elections given the result and that vast areas of the country were unable to vote at all. Abcmaxx (talk) 07:59, 22 June 2026 (UTC)

  Wait article is very bare bones. Scuba 13:43, 22 June 2026 (UTC)
  Comment While this is ITNR, the article in its current state is lackluster and in my view not detailed enough to warrant posting yet. In addition, no detailed election results have been published (only number of seats won by the ruling party), and as such the article cannot depict that. I would at the very least await more detailed results. Gust Justice (talk) 19:30, 22 June 2026 (UTC)
  Wait until counting is completed and final results are announced. Currently, the article is deficient of that. ACMehta (talk) 02:47, 23 June 2026 (UTC)
  > I don't think this is a wise idea because preliminary results usually contain a lot of weight and political parties or independent candidates would declare victory based off of those results. On 3 May 2025, an entry was added to the in the news section about the 2025 Australian federal election but counting took place in that election for about a month afterwards. Qwerty123M (talk) 02:54, 23 June 2026 (UTC)

  Wait. Article is not very large currently so there is probably a lot of material from the election that is not included. I disagree with @QalasQalas that this is a sham election as there is not concrete evidence supporting that claim in the article or that you have provided, additionally we would probably cover the election even if it were a sham but change the blurb, this section covered the 2024 Russian presidential election which was widely criticised as a sham (not the nomination, the election itself). Qwerty123M (talk) 03:02, 23 June 2026 (UTC)
  The Tigray region was not included in the election. I'll add a an altblurb focusing on the announcing of results to follow precedent for questionable elections. Bremps... 15:47, 23 June 2026 (UTC)

- Comment - What does "most voted" mean? Do you mean "most supported"? Also, there is no reason to say "described far right". De la Espriella is about as far right as you can get. Just say he's a far right politician. No one would argue with that. Nosferattus (talk) 02:49, 22 June 2026 (UTC)

  I'm using the wording in the election article, it says that he is the most voted for presidential candidate in the entirety of the history of the Colombian republic. shane (talk to me if you want!) 03:26, 22 June 2026 (UTC)

  Assuming this means "got the most votes", but that is odd wording. Natg 19 (talk) 03:35, 22 June 2026 (UTC)

  I would argue with that. Looking at his policy, it would be a stretch to call him far right. If media called him that it's safer to say "described as". Salmon Of Ignorance (talk) 08:48, 22 June 2026 (UTC)

- Comments. Alt blurb (sans "becoming...") proposed. De la Espriella's article is borderline acceptable for the main page; the election article still has gaps (but OK, it isn't bolded...). But suggest waiting for the final count (which would give us time to polish both articles, including deciding on whether it's "De la Espriella" or "de la Espriella" when he appears mid-sentence). - Comment I've never seen an election blurb with a political stance mentioned on it (not even either Trump election). Nor does this seem to be the coup de grace of the pink tide if the map on that article shows a lot more blue in 2018, when Mexico and Brazil were on that side. Unknown Temptation (talk) 09:43, 22 June 2026 (UTC)

- Wait Neither Cepeda nor outgoing president Petro have conceded to the results and are both waiting for the escrutinio (thorough vote counting) which might throw different results to the preliminary counting. Sr. Knowthing ¿señor? 12:56, 22 June 2026 (UTC)

  Support posting now The BBC acknowledged El Tigre as the winner last night, so barring pretty much every other news agency refusing to acknoledge a winner, we should follow the sources. Oppose on Quality There is an orange tagged section and the article feels very table heavy. Also, the first round foreign vote section has no numbers. Finally, the second paragraph of the lead has no sources and disagrees with the rest of the article (specifically, it says there were 13 candidates in the first round of voting but the candidates section shows 16). ~2026-36471-65 (talk) 15:22, 23 June 2026 (UTC)

  The more I look at this article, the more problems I find. The article needs to be flipped chronologically (so that later polls and voting rounds follow earlier ones). There are about 8 citations that are never defined. There are a couple of dubious claims in the lead (including the claim that Petro is the first leftwing president of Columbia, which someone on the talk page claims is false), and it seems that a sockpuppet may have dumped a bunch of halucinated text into the article. ~2026-36471-65 (talk) 14:44, 24 June 2026 (UTC)

  Stunts1990 once an item rolls off this page, it is considered stale, and it should not be "rescued" from the archives, except for rare circumstances. The other condition for staleness is whether this event is older than the lowest blurb of the ITN template. Currently, this is the Venezuelan earthquakes with a listed date of June 24, so this election is also stale by that condition. Natg 19 (talk) 16:55, 5 July 2026 (UTC)

- Strong oppose this is Americentric to just post our anniversary. Natg 19 (talk) 21:24, 4 July 2026 (UTC)
- Weak Oppose, maybe even Neutral. Good faith, and in the nom's defense, this isn't an unreasonable blurb idea - there is an appropriate target article that's not too stubby, it's something being talked about in the news not just in the US but globally, and readers are likely to be interested in it. That's honestly all I really think any blurb should need to pass, so I have a hard time opposing this. It's not an unimportant milestone by any means, it's one of the most noteworthy ones of our lifetimes. Many of us won't live to see the next major anniversary of US independence in 2076 (and we can only hope Wikipedia will still be around then, and as free and independent as it is today). But this is arguably just a milestone, just a number more than an event; the thing being talked about around the world is that the United States turned 250, not any specific event that took place during the celebrations. I don't think this should be rapidly closed, though. Vanilla Wizard 💙 22:05, 4 July 2026 (UTC)
  Switching to strong Support after recalling that we posted the Platinum Jubilee of Elizabeth II. We do post milestone celebrations at ITN. And when she passed, one hundred percent of sections on the main page were dedicated to her, and when I suggested it was a bit much, I received a lot of pushback saying that each section of the main page acts independently and what they do or do not post should not be affected by what anyone else is doing. Vanilla Wizard 💙 22:59, 4 July 2026 (UTC)
  With the significant difference that, in the case of Queen Elizabeth, the supports of the nomination—though not on my part—were based on the exceptional achievement of a monarch reaching 70 years on the throne. A country celebrating 250 years is so common that there are countries that double or triple that figure...BTW, the mistakes of the past should not be taken as precedents. _-_Alsor (talk) 23:04, 4 July 2026 (UTC)
  Supporters of blurbing Elizabeth II's jubilee, even though it was just a celebration for an impressive number (no different from this), largely pointed to the fact that it would likely be the only such blurb they would ever get to post in their lifetime. This is no different, it's possible that we/ITN/Wikipedia won't be around for the 300th US anniversary, it's a once in a lifetime blurb. And if any other country has a major anniversary like this, then as long as it's "in the news" and we've got a nice article then I say we post theirs too. I don't want to permanently shut the door on them by enabling a precedent like "we didn't post America, why should we post country x?" also, less importantly, we posted the Diamond Jubilee of Elizabeth II too Vanilla Wizard 23:19, 4 July 2026 (UTC)

See you next year, when the 251st anniversary is celebrated, also a once-in-a-lifetime event. _-_Alsor (talk) 23:29, 4 July 2026 (UTC)

- Comment I immediately thought of the Centenary of the Armistice of 11 November 1918, attended by 72 heads of state and marking a global occasion. That wasn't even nominated. Though a negative proves nothing. I struggle to imagine how recent bicentennials of Latin American independence would ever be posted, or 50-75th anniversaries in Africa or Asia. But somebody will probably reply with a reason why this one is much better. Unknown Temptation (talk) 22:30, 4 July 2026 (UTC)

  For what it's worth, I would like to see us post blurbs of this variety for anniversaries across Latin America, Africa, and Asia. One reason why I didn't want to strongly oppose this is, because this is probably the first last and only blurb discussion for a major US anniversary ITN will ever get to vote on, an immediate snow close of this would de facto set a lifelong precedent that no other countries' anniversaries are worth posting, when I'd much rather we post more, not less. Vanilla Wizard 22:43, 4 July 2026 (UTC)

  Wikipedia is an encyclopedia, not a site for celebrating anniversaries. Why should we celebrate or post about India's or Canada's independence? They'll also be celebrating their 250th anniversary. That's not the point of all this. _-_Alsor (talk) 22:57, 4 July 2026 (UTC)

- Oppose DYK, TFA, and OTD can do the heavy lifting of acknowledging major country founding milestones, but unless something significant happens with any events, it would be improper to do this at ITN. Masem (t) 22:35, 4 July 2026 (UTC)

  However, some have wondered if we are out of sync with the other parts of the MP, and so this would make us in sync if we posted this. Natg 19 (talk) 23:03, 4 July 2026 (UTC)

  We celebrated April 1 and had discussions about International Women's Day, so I don't see why we can't sync up with the MP here. — Knightoftheswords us 250 00:18, 5 July 2026 (UTC)

  Both of those are extremely agnostic of any national ties. Masem (t) 01:42, 5 July 2026 (UTC)

- Oppose as a Yank myself, this anniversary dominates three of the five sections of the main page and is present in one of the others. We don't need it in ITN. Feeglgeef (talk) 22:36, 4 July 2026 (UTC)
- Support, of course, and surprised there is opposition. This nationwide celebration marks a key anniversary of the formation of the nation that, among other things, created enough freedom for its citizens to become the birthplace of Wikipedia. Randy Kryn (talk) 22:39, 4 July 2026 (UTC)

  This nom concerns the specific anniversary, not the formation of the US itself. Departure– (talk) 22:56, 4 July 2026 (UTC)

  There are bills of rights and debates about civil liberties that predate the United States by a long time. So... _-_Alsor (talk) 22:58, 4 July 2026 (UTC)

  You ask "So"? American independence remains an unprecedented ongoing experiment in human history, and its successes have shaped the human race into something much different than it was in 1776. The force and direction of the concept of liberty that American independence events magnified continue even to the point of every edit on Wikipedia. Randy Kryn (talk) 23:17, 4 July 2026 (UTC)

  That's a distinctly American-centered view of history. The idea of liberty was shaped by centuries of developments across Europe (Magna Carta, medieval Christian political thought, Protestant Reformation, Valladolid debate) and beyond, not by a single revolution, and the United States' historical legacy includes both major advances (Virginia Declaration of Rights) and serious injustices (Condor Operation, slavery...). I don't think that belongs in Wikipedia's voice. _-_Alsor (talk) 23:38, 4 July 2026 (UTC)

  Of course it was, and American took the past and present concepts of liberty and ran them down the field. Others had the ideas and preknowledge that someday, somewhere, those ideas would be expanded and tested. America then created the experiment, and well-earned cheers that they've held it together for 250 years. Randy Kryn (talk) 23:42, 4 July 2026 (UTC)

  This reply chain seems to be getting off-topic into WP:SOAP territory. Departure– (talk) 23:46, 4 July 2026 (UTC)

- Oppose American exceptionalism rears its ugly head again. 250 years isn't significant, it's an arbitrary number and most of the world's existing nation-states predate this by a long way, even though national identity has not always been a key feature of governance in human history. In fact, statistically the average global citizen can probably easily find a building that is much older than the US in their nearest town without much trouble. Abcmaxx (talk) 23:31, 4 July 2026 (UTC)

  That's the point, look where civilization was 250 years ago and where it is now because of the freedoms brought forward in America's founding documents. This may be one of those either you know or you don't situations. Maybe look around you right now and check out how many things you can see or touch in real-time that wouldn't have existed if the American experiment in human freedom had gone another way. That might give just a small portion of the barriers removed and the amount of human progress encouraged by those documents drafted and agreed to 250 years ago. Randy Kryn (talk) 23:38, 4 July 2026 (UTC)

  No one is denying the influence of the American founding documents, but it is an overstatement to attribute modern "civilization" or broad social progress primarily to them. The development of rights, science, and constitutional government was already well underway across Europe and other parts of the world long before 1776, and later constitutions and human rights frameworks draw on multiple, interconnected and not-only-American traditions. The current international system for the protection of rights and freedoms was also largely shaped and institutionalised through European legal and political developments, and European jurists and courts. _-_Alsor (talk) 00:01, 5 July 2026 (UTC)

  I'm going to have to second what Departure said, this is WP:SOAP / WP:NOTFORUM and it really isn't helping our chances at seeing this posted, which I also support. Few will be persuaded by rationales along the lines of "we earned this blurb by being the best most important country ever & changing the course of world history by inventing freedom", that exceptionalist rationale is the total opposite of why I support. I want us to do this for everyone equally. I support because there's precedent for posting significant numerical anniversaries, because we consistently posted birthday blurbs for the same monarch every ten years, ITN surely won't be overwhelmed with too many blurbs if we post major national celebrations around the world at a rate of once or twice per century. Vanilla Wizard 00:05, 5 July 2026 (UTC)

  Yeah, I agree. Irrespective of our opinions on these arguments in of themselves, this argument is not going to fly amongst a section of Wikipedia already subject to longstanding accusations from folks of anti-American bias. Similar to arguments of the US being somehow unimportant. — Knightoftheswords us 250 00:14, 5 July 2026 (UTC)

  Agree with all above. Btw, no one has said US is "somehow unimportant" _-_Alsor (talk) 00:30, 5 July 2026 (UTC)

Should have added this to be in line with the main page in general, but alas, there's less then ten minutes left in UTC time 😔. Ah, that's British time anyway, so we could extend this to end when the day ends here in the states. Anyway, on a serious note, good anniversary receiving coverage, and Kryn is correct that it's why we're here on Wikipedia rn, but there are also OTD concerns. Weak Support since the rest of the main page already celebrated, but obviously it's going to be posted out of sync. — Knightoftheswords us 250 23:54, 4 July 2026 (UTC)

Freedom (and encyclopaedias) already existed long before 1776. _-_Alsor (talk) 23:57, 4 July 2026 (UTC)

Contemporary freedom is an Anglo-American (and slightly French) creation, and America's capitalist, can-do spirit and right to freedom expression is the reason why we have the largest repository of free knowledge on the planet. — Knightof theswords us 250 00:03, 5 July 2026 (UTC)

- Support, this is a notable and significant event, but the arguments of "America invented freedom so its anniversary deserves a blurb" are beyond ridiculous. So much for countering Wikipedia's Americentrism, huh? Loytra 01:04, 5 July 2026 (UTC)

Oppose Very Americentric. I don't like comparisons, but the 150th anniversary of Canada was not posted, same with the 100th anniversary of the CCP. I do not see how this is any different. I would have not supported any of these nor the (completely unrelated) platinum jubilee. hungry (talk) 01:13, 5 July 2026 (UTC)

Strong oppose. I'm not convinced the celebrations and thereabouts themselves are notable. We can argue and bicker about whether or not the US is important for days on end, but at the end of the day, what makes 250 any more notable than 249, or for that matter, 256?

The specific America 250 celebrations and observances are the only thing I can think of being viable to blurb. As others have pointed out, it's not just some arbitrary milestone, inasmuch as it may seem to be. There are tangible things changing in the US to celebrate this specific day that they don't do every year. I'd say, to that end, the most apt comparisons are to the Diamond and Platinum Jubilees of the Queen. Looking at the archived discussion of the latter, my general understanding is that the consensus built was shaky, the posting itself controversial, and much of the sway being the specific recognition of the British monarch in places all over the world, not just within the United Kingdom, and, in particular for the Platinum, the fact that the Queen was one of history's oldest monarchs, being one of only a handful to even reign long enough to celebrate that Jubilee. To that end, I think it's worth noting that a significant amount of coverage on this event has been on its blatant politicization in favor of the incumbent Republican government of the US. Is it, then, worth noting in the blurb that the celebrations for this milestone have been scaled down? I personally don't think there's any one altblurb that can adequately cover the level of context necessary to include it while also being short and concise enough to gain consensus over any other blurb. To that end, I'd feel uncomfortable leaving out such context in any blurb that does end up being posted. I don't necessarily believe that the concerns over America-centrism are bonafide to the level that this should be shot down based solely on that and this being a milestone. On the other hand, to say this event is not controversial within the United States, at this very moment in my nation's political climate, would be dishonest.

The way I see it, as an American, is that this Independence Day has been about average. Every effort to celebrate this year in particular over any other has been met by others withdrawing or otherwise reigning in their otherwise perennial celebrations. That is to say, the politicization of the Semiquincentennial has led to it not being of the scope or scale it would be otherwise. Thus, I can't support this as a feature. On the grounds, I've seen very little actually extraordinary about the celebrations and events today. I don't think it'd be a stretch to say a lot of them would nevertheless be occurring had the country been founded in 1775 or 1777. Dare I say, the politicization of this event has made it, in reality, more of a nationalistic advertising campaign than a genuine celebration of an otherwise arbitrary milestone.

While I disagree with their position and rationale, I think User:Vanilla Wizard summed it up best. A lot of the support !votes here really do read like we earned this blurb by being the best most important country ever & changing the course of world history by inventing freedom. Let me refine my thoughts on this blurb into as concise a way possible. This milestone, however arbitrary, is notable due to the celebrations taking place, however it's been politicized overtly and thus suffered the fate of feeling more like a marketing campaign than an wholehearted anniversary celebration. Seeing as anniversaries themselves are inconsistently handled, as per User:Unknown Temptation's rationale, including my own read of the Platinum Jubilee blurbs posted in 2022 as controversial and not necessarily sound, I think it's fair to say posting this after our platform already celebrated the semiquincentennial UTC 4 July would be tantamount to participating in publicizing an already heavily-publicized event with little actual importance in the world. It's all ceremonies at the end of the day. While ceremonies can be notable in some instances, I don't believe that these ceremonies meet that bar. Departure– (talk) 02:05, 5 July 2026 (UTC)

And you say that I was the one into WP:SOAP territory. Your essay here is well thought out but misses the point of what the 'Support' editors are talking about, described, at least for me personally, above. Randy Kryn (talk) 02:25, 5 July 2026 (UTC)

Well , we do have "don't oppose a nomination just because its related to one country", however, I don't think most are arguing that here, simply that we've not done any nation's major type of anniversary before, and to start it with the US feels very out of place. if we not likely to be consistent with that in the future. Masem (t) 03:58, 5 July 2026 (UTC)

I know but ultimately I don't believe it meets the significance bar. jolielover♥talk 03:59, 5 July 2026 (UTC)

- Oppose – I don't believe we post anniversaries to ITN in general, that's what WP:OTD is for. I agree with Hungry403's point that no one brought up similar submissions for Canada or China. If anything, posting the Jubilee could've been yet another example of ITN's British-centrism, though I'd have to revisit that discussion. Nice4What (talk · contribs) ♥ 03:45, 5 July 2026 (UTC)

  Note how the "royal wedding" is put in quotation, since it's just a mere comparison the US media used to describe it. I doubt we're even gonna need a blurb a celebrity wedding, even if that said figure is on the calibre of, say, Michael Jackson. NotKringe (talk) 10:10, 4 July 2026 (UTC)

- Strong oppose It's just celebrity wedding, and I think we only ever blurbed British royal marriage for the sheer media circus around it, which this one lacks. NotKringe (talk) 10:05, 4 July 2026 (UTC)

  We've blurbed Charles and Camilla, William and Kate, Albert and Charlene, and Harry and Meghan.--Launchballer 10:08, 4 July 2026 (UTC)
  Notice how 3/4 of these blurbs involves British royals, and 3 of them were more than 15 years ago, back when the blurb standard were much lower. Harry and Meghan got a blurb mainly due to the sheer drama and controversies surrounding it. NotKringe (talk) 10:11, 4 July 2026 (UTC)
  Yeah, I suspect that none of those would have been blurbed these days. Black Kite (talk) 10:15, 4 July 2026 (UTC)

- Oppose eh... certainly nothing like a royal wedding. NOTNEWS. News media just reports on whatevers popular. I guarantee you nobody internationally is throwing parades for this wedding, I feel like this may be too American-centric (or Western-centric). jolielover♥talk 12:00, 4 July 2026 (UTC)
- Strong oppose This isn't important enough of an event. What impact does it even have? other than two celebrities getting married. ITN should not be the place for celebrity news. GoldenBootWizard276 (talk) 12:49, 4 July 2026 (UTC)
- Support – We have posted royal weddings before, and this has been called the American equivalent. This is in the news, there is widespread international coverage, the cultural significance is apparent, and the article is worth showcasing. Though no one has explicitly expressed as such, please do not !oppose due to a dislike of pop culture or Taylor Swift. And please avoid any temptation to snow close as many oppose !votes are with little-to-no basis. Nice4What (talk · contribs) ♥ 12:35, 4 July 2026 (UTC) (edited 13:00, 4 July 2026 (UTC))
  This isn't a royal wedding as neither Taylor Swift or Travis Kelce are royalty. GoldenBootWizard276 (talk) 12:36, 4 July 2026 (UTC)

  There's no mention of the words "de facto" in this source and I would argue, that the term "royal wedding" is not being used literally by media sources but as a metaphor. GoldenBootWizard276 (talk) 12:55, 4 July 2026 (UTC)

- Oppose, the fact that it is being compared to a royal wedding in the press doesn't mean that it is one, especially as it doesn't have all the implications for dynastic succession, etc. "Just" two major celebrities getting married. Chaotic Enby (in solidarity · talk · contribs) 13:20, 4 July 2026 (UTC)
- Support I'm not a fan or very interested in the event myself but it has clearly been getting huge coverage as I've been hearing regular bulletins here in the UK. As a popular spectacle, it's just as significant as all the sport that ITN promotes and the article looks to be top quality with lots of content and over a hundred citations so far. Andrew (talk) 13:26, 4 July 2026 (UTC)

Thing is, we don't blurb "popular spectacle" if it ends up amounted to nothing. We have a bunch of big events here and there like state funeral or wedding, yet none of these are getting blurb for simple fact that it doesn't change anything. NotKringe (talk) 14:17, 4 July 2026 (UTC)

Oppose and close This can't be true. A singer and a sportsman are getting married... well, fine, congratulations to them. This is an encyclopedia, not a tabloid. We're not going to reach a (serious) consensus, so we should close the nomination. _-_Alsor (talk) 13:29, 4 July 2026 (UTC)

  - No. We didn't for Thatcher nor Queen Elizabeth, who clearly has a week+ long series of state functions to honor their passing, but we posted their blurbs at death, not the pomp afterwards. MASEM (t) 19:31, 3 July 2026 (UTC)
- Oppose I think based upon the above precedence of the fact that we didn't do one for Queen Elizabeth's funeral but did feature her death as a blub. Just as with HLM, we did run Khamenei's article as a blurb when he was killed. That would suggest that it would not be suitable to run the funeral on ITN too. The C of E God Save the King! (talk) 19:37, 3 July 2026 (UTC)
- Oppose Khamenei's death was blurbed, that suffices. I also doubt the assertion that "Iranians take this very seriously" - what's the punishment for not attending? Khuft (talk) 19:52, 3 July 2026 (UTC)

Nominators often include links to external websites and other references in discussions on this page. It is usually best to provide such links using the inline URL syntax `[http://example.com]` rather than using `<ref></ref>` tags, because that keeps all the relevant information in the same place as the nomination without having to jump to this section, and facilitates the archiving process.

For the times when `<ref></ref>` tags are being used, here are their contents:
